tured lawyer in Detroit left his office unoccupied for an hour the other day, and some of the kers in the block went in and built up a rousing hot fire in his coal stove. He came back with his hat in his hand and almost dead with the heat, and was met on the stairs by a lawyer, who said: "This is the hottest yet. The thermometer in my room marks 120 degrees.

"Don't seem possible, though it's a searcher," replied the other as he went on to his room. He threw down his hat, took off his cost, and began fanning himself, but the barder he fanned the hotter he grew. Two or three lawyers came in and spoke about how cool his room was compared to theirs, and were greatly puzz'ed to account for it. Several offers were made him to change rooms, and protty soon he grew ashamed of appearing so overheated and sat down to his table. In five minutes his shirt collar fell flat, and in ten he hadn't any starch io his shirt. The perspiration ran about in every dir ction, and he seemed to be boiling when one of his friends looked in and remarked :

"Ab! old boy, I envy you. You've got the coolest room in the bleek." "Say, said the lawyer, as he staggered over to the door, "I'm going home. I never felt so queer in all my life. While I know that the room is coel and airy. I'm so baked and boiled that I can't lift a hand. One drick of brandy wouldn't act that way on a man, would it?"

"That's just it," whispered the other. Brandy always acts that way, especially if you drink alone. You ought to have known better. "So I had-so I had. Don't say a word to the boys-I'll make it all right. I thought something must all me, and I was a little afraid

I was going to be sent for. I'm glad its nothing serious-I'll be back in about two hours.' NOT TO BE DIVIDED. - A few days ago a small group gathered around the kneeling form of a middle aged man, who, dead, and with blood trickling from two bullet holes in his head, knelt on a new made grave in the Holy Cross Catholic Cemetery in Baltimore. A sorap of note paper, which protruded from the pocket of his vest, told his story. Oa it was traced in lead pencil: "Dear Katie, I love you so, and I will be with you before night. O my God! if I have offended you I beg your pardon, and I hope you will forgive me?" No name was signed to these lines. A search through the clothes of the unfortune ate man resulted in disclosing his identity, by means of a card on which was printed the name of John T. Erpenbeck. News of the tragedy s on spread throughout the northeastern section of the city, and the body was removed to his home. His wife, about two months azo, had died, and since then her husband has been inconsolable. Six years previously Erpenbeck had come to Bassimore from Norfolk, Va., his native place. He was then a handsome young man, about twenty nine years of age. Living in East Baltimore, he soon formed an strachment for the daughter of a widow lady who resided in that part of the city, and after a few months' courtship they were quietly married. Sober, honest and industrious, Erpenbeck opened a little grocery store and soon commanded a comfortable living. A pretty boy baby blossed the union, and the couple lived happily notil a sudden illness laid the wife in her grave. The shock was too great, and the widowed husband fell into a lasting fit of melancholy, from which he could not be aroused. THE SUMAC INDUSTRY -Sumac abounds in some parts of Virginia in large quantities, and is gathered by colored people from Juge to October, who sell it to country merchants at 50 cts. per hundred weight. The merchants sell it to the proprietors of sumac mill; here and elsewhere, where it is pulverized and prepared for Northern markets, to be used in tanning and dyeing. The gathering of this article has of late become so extensive that it may be regarded as a new industry. Years ago the virtue of Virginia sumac was very little known, and consequently very little was gathered; but when it was found to be among the best in the world the demand for it has steadily increased, so much so that it is likely that before long it will be cultivated. Last year one of the merchants in Bounswick county shipped fifty tons to Petersburg. A colored hand can easily gather one hundred to one hundred and fifty pounds a day. Saturday is the busiest day for merchants in the rural districts, and then colored people can be seen coming to the stores from morning until evening to dispose of their sumac gathered during the week. Those that are too poor to own oxen or horses carry it. It is nothing unusual for a colored woman to carry forty or fifty pounds at s time on her head a considerable distance. Since the article grows wild there are no restrictions on the privilege of gathering it, but the colored people in general ask permission to
